Atlanta Company Gets Big Canal Zone Contract

150 Georgians To Take Part in $794,000 Job

18 Months Will Be Required To Complete U. S. Plumbing.

An Atlanta firm has been given the contract for installing $794,000 worth of plumbing at Cristobal, Canal Zone, where the federal government, under its augmented defense program, is building 161 officers' quarters and 33 barracks for enlisted men, it was announced yesterday.

Groves Oprey, head of the Oprey Plumbing and Heating Company here, said last night that 150 journeymen plumbers, as many of them from Atlanta as can be obtained, will be sent to the scene of the job in the next few weeks.

They will be in Panama for at least 18 months, with the possibility of remaining for five years if further prospective construction is approved.

Vanguard Leaves.

Three men are already in Cristobal. They are C. R. James, general superintendent; W. C. Carter, assistant superintendent; and Sewell Howard, accountant.

A vanguard crew of expert plumbers, key men of the crews which will be formed, left by train for New Orleans last night. They will sail from there late this afternoon, arriving in Cristobal Friday or Saturday of next week.

While on the job the men will be paid $12 for an eight-hour day and will have the privilege of working seven days a week if they so desire. They will be housed in barracks built by the company near the scene of the job, and their transportation is paid both ways by the company.

Half Are Married.

Four of the workers are married men with families, which they are leaving at home. The others are bachelors.

They are Jimmy Martin, 27, and P. O. Wilson, 32, of Kannapolis, N. C.; C. A. Broome Jr., 33, and Paul A. Payne, 22, of Chattanooga, C. T. Brown, 38, of Macon; Douglas J. Newnam, 31, of Atlanta, and J. H. Dickinson, 42, of Milledgeville.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Aug. 2.—(P)—The War Department today closed the Sault locks to all visitors, effective August 12, as a matter of "military necessity."

No other reason was given for the closing, which restores a restriction that existed from the outbreak of war in Europe last September until June 15 of this year.

Convict, Inmate Of Almshouse Deny Murders

Two Witnesses in Peek Case Contradict Turner, Another Convict.

By WILLARD COPE,

Staff Writer.

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 2.—The defense struck back with its most powerful weapons this afternoon in striving to free Bill Chappell of the charge of killing J. Ed Peek, on which he is facing a superior court jury here.

Total denial that they had any connection with the slaying of Peek and his wife July 20, 1938, came from Jason Clark, life-term murderer, and John Holsombeck, eccentric inmate of the Carroll county almshouse—thus countering the testimony of Lewis Turner, convict, that they with Chappell and himself constituted a group that slew the pair, drenched them with kerosene and sent them crashing into a railroad cut three miles from Austell.

Holsombeck proved by far the most colorful figure of the trial. A timid, white-haired man, with quizzical smile and twisting hands, unshaven and wearing overalls, he displayed definite personality, and frequently brought smiles and laughter with his nasal twang and colloquial expressions.

"Bill never at no time told me to do nothing," he swore at one point, as Attorney Willis Smith, defense counsel, questioned him on specific points of the testimony of Lewis Turner, who accused Chappell of the murder. He said he had not been to any of the night spots along the death route, as related by Turner, and hadn't visited Atlanta in 30 years until his arrest in May and indictment for murder.

The defense sought to show that the aged man had been put through a sort of traveling third-degree by Captain Arthur Hutchins, of the state patrol, and Cobb county officials, who took him first to Atlanta and then to Canton, questioning him at length, before finally lodging him in the jail here.

Another defense witness, Horrie Morgan, referred to as "Shine" Morgan by Turner, denied the lat-

SNAKE HANDLERS REFUSE FOOD; MISSING CHILD VICTIM RETURNS

Pastor of Religious Sect May Be Accused in Connection With Year-Old Death After Reptile Ceremony.

ADEL, Ga., Aug. 2.—(P)—Rejecting food and water, two members of a "snake-handling" religious cult went on a hunger strike today.

Overlaid followers shouted encouragement from the dusty, sun-baked square as gaunt Rev. W. T. Lipham and his tenant-farmer adherent, Albert Rowan, clasped Bibles and paced separate cells in Cook county jail, praying aloud for divine deliverance.

Held without bond on charges of assault to murder, pending recovery of Rowan's six-year-old daughter, Leitha Ann Rowan, who was bitten by a venomous snake at religious rites a week ago, the two men sent word to Sheriff W. I. Daughtrey that they would "fast awhile."

Lipham and Rowan, Daughtrey related, refused their breakfast of sausage, grits, egg and biscuit, asking the sheriff to bring them no more food.

"They said when they wanted some, they'd let me know," Daughtrey said.

Daughtrey said if the hunger strike persisted, he would attempt forcible feeding of the prisoners, "but just how we'll do it is a puzzle to me."

"Faith Cure."

On the progress of the child, whose relatives claim she was responding to the cult's "faith cure," hinged the extent of legal action which may be taken against Lipham and her father.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Daughtrey said he was asked by Sheriff N. N. Hughes, of neighboring Berrien county, not to release Lipham if he sought to post bond. Hughes said relatives of Mrs. Jeffie Smith, a cult member, who died about a year ago after snake-handling rites, were considering action against Lipham.

Both Lipham and Rowan were promised bond, the sheriff explained, when Leitha Ann is pronounced out of danger.

Missing more than 72 hours as her mother sought to prevent treatment, the girl was brought to the sheriff's office by relatives today. The kinsfolk insisted Leitha

Ann was practically recovered, but Dr. H. W. Clements disagreed. He said her condition remained serious, and ordered another examination Monday.

It is the cult's belief they may handle poisonous snakes "when the power is upon them," and that their faith will counteract venom. Actual medical treatment for the girl was refused, but relatives permitted examination after Superior Judge R. W. Smith ruled yesterday Lipham and Rowan would have to face murder charges if the child died.

Solicitor General Homer Nelson said the assault charges against the men were based on the theory their actions were responsible for the girl handling the snake. Sheriff Daughtrey said eight other cultists were bitten by the snake but none apparently had suffered serious consequences.

Child's Arm Swollen.

Leitha Ann sat upright on the physician's examination table, but did not talk as Dr. Clements looked her over. The child's arm still was swollen from the effects of the bite in her palm and her body was discolored. Those who saw her said she appeared stronger than when seen last Monday.

During yesterday's commitment hearing, the girl's father remarked there were 40 snake handlers "more or less" in Cook county, where he lives, and said there were perhaps 100 in adjoining Berrien county.

After Lipham and Rowan were ordered held, Judge Smith issued a temporary injunction, signed by Lacy Rowan, a brother, restraining the use of snakes in connection with religious services.

Florida Court Upholds John Ringling's Divorce

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 2.—(P)—John Ringling's divorce in 1936 from Emily Buck Ringling was upheld by the Florida supreme court today.

The decision moved the state of Florida nearer to possession of the multi-million dollar estate willed to it by the circus magnate who died four years ago.

$40,000 Jewels Seized by Nazis Returned Here

Late Mrs. J. D. Little's Fortune Recovered After Year's Efforts.

Jewelry worth $40,000 which belonged to the late Mrs. John D. Little, of Habersham road, who died in Karlsbad, Germany, July 27, 1939, has been returned to Atlanta after nearly a year of strenuous effort on the part of the Department of State and the Little estate attorneys.

Bulk of the jewels will be turned over to the estate which Mrs. Little willed to be used for the construction of a memorial library on the University of Georgia campus after the death of her sisters who were given a life interest in the property.

Cost of returning the jewelry to this country was around $4,500, attorneys said yesterday. Some of the money was claimed by the German government for death duties and the rest for marine and war risk insurance policies.

Immediately after Mrs. Little's death of a heart attack, the jewelry was attached by the hotel where she was vacationing, and then taken over by the German government. Greatest difficulty in recovering the jewelry was finding out which department of the German government had possessed it, and overcoming German export restrictions.

Attorneys for the estate said that without the whole-hearted co-operation of Alfred R. Thompson, American consul-general at Dresden, recovery of the small fortune would have been virtually impossible.

Mrs. Little was the widow of John D. Little, prominent Atlanta attorney.

State Highway Unit Under Ban Of Hatch Law

Ruling Causes Prediction Civil Service Act Will Be Sought.

By LUKE GREENE.

A ruling by the State Law Department that all officials and employees of the State Highway Department, numbering more than 2,400, are barred from political activity under the Hatch act yesterday led some to the prediction that passage of a civil service bill for state employees would be sought in the next legislative session.

Because of the far-reaching effect of the act on the highway department, it was thought it might apply similarly to other state departments, virtually taking every employee in the state government out of politics.

Affect Campaign.

The ruling also will have a rebounding effect on Georgia's four candidates for Governor. They will have to dig up another plank for their platforms, since all of them have been promising to take the Highway Department out of politics if they are elected Governor.

Braswell Deen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, has called for an opinion concerning the effect of the act on his department, and it was reported unofficially that most of the employees of that department, numbering about 1,300, will come under the provisions of the act.

The Law Department is giving out rulings on the act only upon the requests of state officials. There has yet been no comprehensive survey of its effect on the entire state government.

Victims of Politics.

The first reaction of the ruling on some employees was that state workers are being denied the privilege of taking an active part in politics but are not receiving any compensation.

Their contention is that they are still the victims of politics without enjoying any of its benefits and that the only remedy for this situation is the establishment of a system of civil service whereby they will be entirely removed from political maneuvering.

One prominent highway official was of the opinion that a civil service bill would stand a good chance of passage in the general assembly.

Employees Objected.

He pointed out that similar bills have been introduced in the legislature before, but never made their headway, largely because the state employees themselves were opposed to them. If most of the employees are barred from political activity, it is thought that they would look favorably on a civil service set-up.

Lamar Murdaugh wrote the opinion on the act in reply to an inquiry from W. L. Miller, chairman of the State Highway Board. Murdaugh said:

"The original Hatch act is entitled 'an act to prevent pernicious political activities' approved August 2, 1939. The amendment which has now become law, in my opinion, covers all officials and employees of the State Highway Department of Georgia, and violation of the provisions of the act by any official or employee of this department would be subject to the penalty provided for in the act."

Others Concur.

Murdaugh said other members of the law department concurred in his opinion.

It was discovered a forgotten Georgia law, passed in 1933, provides for the following:

"It shall be unlawful for any officer of this state or any employee of any department, bureau, agency or institution, while traveling in vehicles upon which the state is paying transportation mileage, to transport any political campaign literature or matter or to engage in soliciting votes, or to transport any person or persons soliciting votes in any election or primary."

Britain Seizes Noted Japanese Businessman

Tokyo's Embassy Probes Reports of Numerous Additional Arrests.

LONDON, Saturday, Aug. 3.—(UP)—The Japanese embassy announced today that K. Makihara, prominent Japanese businessman, has been detained by British police "for unknown reasons" and that it is investigating unconfirmed reports from Singapore that a number of Japanese have been arrested by British authorities in the Straits Settlements.

(British newspapers have been demanding the arrest of Japanese residents of Britain in a number equal to those British residents of Japan held by Japanese military police on charges of espionage.)

The Japanese embassy said Makihara was arrested at 8 p. m. Friday by two members of Scotland Yard who called at his home and took him into custody on unspecified charges. Makihara has been in London about one year, the embassy said, adding that up to 10:50 p. m. no other Japanese residents had been seized.

Branch Manager.

Makihara is manager of the Mitsubishi Shoji Kaisha's London branch and is one of the best-known Japanese businessmen in London.

The Mitsubishi Shoji Kaisha is a unit of the giant Mitsubishi interests of Japan which control banks, steamship lines, mines and trading and manufacturing companies.

News of Makihara's arrest came shortly after Japanese financial interests had revealed that British banks were refusing to discount Japanese bills or extend credit to Japanese banks.

Japanese circles openly forecast an increase in British-Japanese tension which has been mounting as the result of Japan's refusal to entertain requests of the British ambassador in Tokyo for immediate release of imprisoned Britons.

Nine Britons Held.

Nine British subjects in the Japanese empire now are under examination by Japanese military police.

Two more British subjects were arrested in Korea after earlier roundups in Japan proper. Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie in Tokyo made representations to Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka as soon as he was informed of the arrests.

Prior to Makihara's arrest Japanese informants here had expressed conviction Britain would take no retaliatory action against Japan because of her desire to avoid complications in the Far East while the British fleet is occupied in the Mediterranean and the defense of the homeland.

A British spokesman, meanwhile, insisted that unless Japan frees the imprisoned Britons, action will be taken "beyond mere diplomatic representations."

Hamburg Left Pile of Ruins By Air Blows

3,000 Raids Staged to Cripple Blitzkrieg at Its Roots.

By The Associated Press.

Great Britain proclaimed smashing success last night in her own growing aerial offensive designed to cripple any blitzkrieg at its roots in Germany's supply dumps, ports, airdromes and war industries.

In all, the British reported more than 1,000 German objectives bombed in more than 3,000 raids "of genuine weight and importance" to date.

The German port of Hamburg, biggest in all Europe, was pictured in virtual ruins by authoritative British sources—the result of three months of intermittent Royal Air Force blasting.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—(P)—Britons studied almanacs today for a clue to the launching of the expected German invasion. Based on the periods when the tides will be highest, the almanac says it is coming this month the best times would be next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings.

The next best times to take advantage of the tides for landing troops would be from the second to the seventh of September; third choice would be October 1-6, then October 30-November 4.

Germany and Holland were the latest targets reported put under the bomb sights and bomb racks of the RAF.

The Krupp Works, said the air ministry news service, were pounded with bombs for five minutes.

Fires Rage.

The raiders, it was added, "scored several hits on the works and started fires which could be plainly seen by observers until at 11,000 feet our aircraft entered the clouds."

The Bremen radio suddenly shut down late last night, indicating step continuation of the sledgehammer British air raids.

The air ministry said that RAF raiders by day struck a hangar and strafed grounded German planes at the airdromes of Leuwarden and Raamstedde, in the Netherlands.

McCarl Dies; Told 4 Presidents 'No'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(UP) John Raymond McCarl, the only government official ever to say "No" to four Presidents and make it stick, died today at age 61.

For 15 years, until his term expired in 1936 and he was succeeded by former Senator Fred Brown, Democrat, New Hampshire, he sat in a red brick building here and, as United States comptroller general, blue-penciled everything from a $150 luncheon charge on an expense account to the proposed expenditure of millions on a government project.

"McCarl refuses . . . McCarl refuses . . . McCarl refuses . . ."

These two words became anathema to patronage-hungry politicians before the New Deal was swept into power and billions began to flow from the Treasury. The increased spending did not daunt the thrifty little Scotchman, who probably was cursed more often by high and low alike than any other man in the government.

Convict Twice Is Contradicted In Peek Case

By WILLARD COPE, Staff Writer.

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 2.—Skillful and occasionally dynamic blows by James V. "Jimmy" Carmichael, youngest member of defense counsel, seemingly punched at least two holes into the story of the final night of the murdered Ed Peek and his wife as related by Lewis Turner, convict, star witness for the prosecution, who Tuesday named Bill Chappell as leader of the murder party.

The woman proprietor, two waitresses and a patron of the Riverview Inn at Marietta testified that Mr. and Mrs. Peek were there, but that Chappell definitely was not, as asserted by Turner. Another witness, Eugene Ashmore, of Lowell, was added by Carmichael to the number who late yesterday had sworn Chappell was not at Pullen's fish camp, where Turner said the tour of country drinking and dance places had begun.

A mysterious couple was introduced into the scene by the Riverview Inn witnesses. The man was described as tall, dark and handsome and a very graceful dancer. The woman, while tallish, was not so clearly registered in the memories of the witnesses as her companion.

All four, Mrs. Marie Bond, proprietor, Bonnie Parker and Althea Bond, waitresses, and Herbert Harris, mechanic at a near-by garage—who by coincidence was summoned next day to remove the Peek automobile from Mahaffey's railroad cut—were certain the Peeks left the inn with this couple and that no one was at the inn answering the description of the slayer as given by Turner.

It was made clear the defense contention to the jury would be that Peek, despondent, had perhaps killed his wife — thus accounting for the rope about her neck—and had died himself in the plunge of their automobile into the deep railroad cut three miles northeast of Austell.

Part of the groundwork for this version was laid late yesterday in testimony of Mrs. Ella Brumblow, an elderly former neighbor of the Peeks in Atlanta. She told of seeing Peek in the front yard of his home on one occasion.

"He told me that sometimes he felt so blue he wanted to end it all. He said he had some of the tablets used by his first wife, who had died of heart trouble, and he believed if he took them, they would be fatal. I told him to cheer up and not to feel that way."

Among defense witnesses, who swore that Turner was not credible under oath, were M. A. Griffin, ordinary of Carroll county; Judge W. R. Robinson, of the Carrollton city court, and T. J. H. Robinson, clerk of superior court there.

Clerk Robinson was questioned sharply by Solicitor General Grady Vandiviere about delay in supplying criminal records of 11 men presumptively called as witnesses by the defense. Robinson insisted he had wanted to be sure of pay for making certified copies.

Across from Chappell. After bringing out that the office of W. H. Chappell, Carroll county commissioner and father of the defendant, was across the hall in the Carrollton courthouse from the clerk's, Vandiviere asked Robinson:

"You even went across the hall and consulted Commissioner Chappell before you started making the records which our Sheriff McMillin went down there last Saturday for them, didn't you?"

"No," warmly declared the witness. "I didn't."

Cross-examination of most defense witnesses was conducted by Mayor L. M. Blair, assisting in the prosecution, and he sought to break down particularly the alibi witnesses, pressing closely about their exact memories of that night as contrasted with vagueness as to other occasions.

Carmichael had less difficulty with prosecution counsel than Attorney Willis Smith, chief counsel, who had done most of the previous questioning.

Smith and Vandiviere particularly exchanged personalities. And Smith had been shown by the prosecution's questioning of witnesses as extremely active in all affairs of the Chappell family. Helen Peek also had directed the warmest passages of her testimony yesterday at Smith.

Canal Spy Scare Caused by Error

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—A one-word transmission mistake, it developed today, led the War Department to issue an erroneous announcement that 81 "foreign agents" had been detained in the Panama Canal Zone.

The department acknowledged that, so far as it knew, 81 men and women awaiting possible deportation at the canal immigration station were merely European refugees who had been found to have improper immigration papers.

Asked if any of the 81, who included 60 or more from Germany, was a foreign agent, one officer replied, "We don't know."

It was explained today that an army officer, in receiving a verbal report from another, mistook the word "aliens" for "agents."

swept in on western Germany and loosed bombs on synthetic oil plants at Gelsenkirchen, Kamen, Homburg and Reisholz; the Krupp works at Essen, supply depots at Hamm, Krefeld, and Mannheim and several airdromes in northwestern Germany.

"The damage inflicted on the oil targets is believed to be considerable," the ministry communique said.

All the night raiders returned, it was said, but one plane was missing from the daylight attack on the two Holland airdromes.

French airmen took part in the attacks last night on German objectives, their chief objective being the oil plant at Kamen, said a communique from General Charles de Gaulle, whom Britain has recognized as the leader of all "free" Frenchmen.

De Gaulle has been condemned to death in Absentia by a military court in Clermont-Ferrand.

The damage at Hamburg, a city of more than 1,000,000 population, which handles an annual peacetime traffic of 17,000,000 tons, is only a sample of destruction wrought by British bombs dumped by day and night on hundreds of objectives, authoritative sources said.

Naval Bases Bombed. The lesser port of Bremen, home of huge shipyards, miles of docks and its big Focke-Wulf airplane factory, the Kiel and Wilhelmshaven naval bases, and Cologne, continental traffic center, have drawn a large share of attention from British airmen carrying the war to Germany.

This, they asserted, is the answer which is being given with increasing vigor to Adolf Hitler's threat of invasion.

At the same time the British said all their harbors remained intact despite unending German forays, although casualties and damage have resulted inland.

Dover Undamaged. Typical of reports from coastal points was that from the correspondent at Dover, nearest port to France and logical landing place for any invader.

"You might have thought from the size of that big raid last Monday by 80 German planes that a lot of damage has been done. But that's not so."

"They aimed almost altogether at shipping. I went around the harbor after the raid but no part of it or the harbor walls were hit. There has been no damage to the town itself."

The aerial warfare surging back and forth across the channel tapered off somewhat yesterday to sporadic forays. One German bomber was believed downed in the sea off Scotland after dropping one high explosive and 40 incendiary bombs on a golf course.

Other German raiders bombed scattered points in Wales, Eastern Scotland and East Anglia during the night.

Germans Rejoice. Meanwhile, Berlin rejoiced over reaffirmation of Russian friendship for the Reich, new exploits of Nazi air and sea raiders and the reassurance of an anti-aircraft defense credited with destruction of 1,200 planes since the war began.

ter's story that Bill Chappell dropped his Carroll county chain gang key at Morgan's place that night and Morgan returned it next day.

A guard at the Carroll camp, Nathan Smith, known as "the shotgun man," swore both Turner and Clark were locked up as usual the night of the Peek deaths, and that, while Bill Chappell was about the camp for a while, he did not take either of these men, or any one, away in his automobile.

However, under severe cross-examination by Vandiviere, Guard Smith finally said he didn't know when Chappell left that night, and that he, Smith, might have been asleep.

Navy Discloses Canal Mines Laid

COLON, C. Z., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Read Admiral Frank H. Sadler, commandant of the 15th naval district, said today that four destroyers newly assigned to the Panama Canal entrances were intended to keep shipping out of mined areas.

This was the first direct official acknowledgement that newly mined areas exist, but the admiral qualified it with the explanation that personnel was being trained in the laying and sweeping of mines.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation announced today it would begin payments soon to the depositors of the Claxton State Bank, Claxton, Ga., which closed July 26.

The bank had about 1,500 depositors and about $160,000 of deposits.

Fliers of U. S. Men Land To Aid Canada In England To Instruct Pilots Fight Germans

World War Flyer Is Helping Teach Men for British.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Ernest L. Benway, World War flyer, said today he was arranging for American fliers to become instructors in the Royal Air Force in Canada.

Already more than 30 applicants have been trained for Canada where, if accepted, they will receive commissions as flight officers at $340 a month, he said. They need at least 500 flight hours to qualify.

None loses his United States citizenship, since he is not required to take the oath of allegiance to King George, Benway explained. "New York money supplied by Americans anxious to help the cause of democracy," he said, "is helping meet the cost of enlisting instructors. Each American who joins the Canadian Royal Air Force frees a Briton for overseas duty."

Windsors Abandon Plan To Visit U. S.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, now at sea en route from Lisbon to the Duke's new post as Governor of the Bahamas, apparently will not visit the United States, but will leave the American export liner Excalibur at Bermuda.

The United States Maritime Commission reported it had given permission for the Excalibur to stop at Bermuda, British island colony, 405 miles out of her way. The Excalibur had been scheduled to steam direct from Lisbon to New York, arriving August 9. Officials of the line here confirmed the stop at Bermuda but declined further information.

Nazi Conquerors Scorn French Refugees' Plight

PARIS, July 29.—(Delayed)—(AP) Via Berlin—German authorities in a declaration today to French newspapers on the plight of refugees stated: "It must be said without sentimentality that it is not the affair of a conqueror to free everyone of the misery which the faults of the conquered themselves caused."

Germany blamed France's plight on her "insensate declaration of war" against the Nazis and directed all protests on refugee distress to the French government.

REDCAP CHARGE. SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 2.—(AP)—It's 10-cents-a-bag for travelers leaving and arriving at the Union station here now. The station company has adopted the flat rate porter service charge and eliminated tipping of its redcaps in line with systems used in several larger cities.

Negroes and Indians in Canadian Contingent; Alabamian Enlists.

A NORTHERN BRITISH PORT, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Britain's forces were augmented today with the arrival of another formidable Canadian contingent, including a liberal sprinkling of Americans.

One former member of the Michigan state legislature, among the new arrivals, said there were a substantial number of Americans in his brigade.

"There would have been lots more if we had not persuaded them to stay at home and look after their families," he said.

Adam Kowalski, a Polish-born Detroit, explained his service this way:

"I've two brothers lost somewhere in Poland. I don't know what's become of them. That's one reason. Another is that this job of putting Germany in her proper place must be finished and I want to help."

"Bing" Pondel, of Omaha—who had done a seven-and-one-half-year hitch in the United States marines—said he came because he "wanted action."

David Croll, the Windsor (Canada) mayor who received the King and Queen on their visit last year, remarked he was "happy" to be in an enlisted man's uniform. Croll also is chairman of the trust fund for the Dionne quintuplets.

The United States members came from almost every region. There was a scattering of Indians and Negroes.

Young Donnel Van de Voort, of Montgomery, Ala., gave this explanation of how he happened to be here, a private in an Ontario infantry regiment:

"This is our row as well as yours—and fighting is my hobby, anyway."

Private Bob Brown, of Wheelwright, Ky., said most of them had been working in Detroit "alongside Canadians, who were just like brothers to us."

Male immigrant Jews were forbidden to carry out of the country more than two suits of clothing, one pair of overalls, one sweater and one overcoat.

Comedy Films Highlight New Theater Fare

'Pride and Prejudice,' 'The Man I Married,' and 'Blondie' Open.

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

Refreshing in its language of another era, the dialog comedy, "Pride and Prejudice," helped along by a noteworthy cast, offers complete diversion at Loew's. It's the show of the week.

Many anti-Nazi propaganda films have been made in recent months. For my choice, gone is better than "The Man I Married," starring Joan Bennett at the Paramount in a film which pokes fun and satire at Hitler and his regime in a thoroughly entertaining fashion.

Sinclair Lewis' "Mantrap" is back in Technicolor under title of "Untamed" at the Fox. It has some pretty scenery and a good actor, Akim Tamiroff. "Sporting Blood" is an exciting story of thoroughbred horses and women at the Rhodes. "Blondie Has a Servant Trouble" is at the Rialto with a none too original difference from the other films of the series. The Capitol is showing a film of gambling on the high seas plus a short subject dealing with the Georgia State Patrol.

"PRIDE AND PREJUDICE" HAS WITTY DIALOG

"Pride and Prejudice," which premiered first at Loew's yesterday, has a delightful old-fashioned flavor, telling in witty dialog of the courtship between a headstrong, prejudiced girl and a proud, arrogant man.

The speech is refreshing and provides good comedy for moderns with its approach to the marriage problem. The entire cast is excellent and it is because of their fine work in so cleverly presenting the dialog that lack of action is not missed.

Greer Garson and Laurence Olivier head the cast and are ably supported by Ann Rutherford, Mary Boland, Edna Mae Oliver, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frieda Inescort and others. The story is laid in England, in a forgotten era when mothers went to elaborate pains to get daughters married to wealthy young gentlemen. The idea has been forgotten today. The approach is just different.

"THE MAN I MARRIED" FILLED WITH LAUGHS

The best of the anti-Nazi stories—from strictly entertainment standpoint—is "The Man I Married," formerly called "I Married a Nazi," now playing at the Paramount theater. It is amusing.

Joan Bennett is cast as the girl who married a German in America, went home with him and saw him turn Nazi. Francis Lederer is the husband. Joan preaches against the Nazi doctrine, but not as such. Just her manner of wearing the latest fashions while the Nazi women go without any beauty aids should get the producer's point over to the women, and the men.

Satire is used to great advantage and jokes keep the audience laughing. Lloyd Nolan, as the American newspaper correspondent in Berlin and Joan's only friend, contributes many of the wisecracks, such as: "Hitler has sold the Germans the greatest gold brick in history. They think the world was made for rule by blond Aryans only—but they forget the Little Man is slightly on the dark side himself."

When Joan finds the Nazi views of her husband intolerable and learns he plans to take her son, divorce her and marry a Nazi girl, she leaves the bedroom in a huff with a "Heil, Heil," Otto Kruger, as the father-in-law who refuses to let his grandson live in Nazi Germany, is fine.

'SPORTING BLOOD' FULL OF ACTION AT RHODES.

Horse lovers and action seekers will find both in "Sporting Blood," first-run attraction current at the Rhodes theater.

Robert Young, Lynne Carver, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lewis Stone, Bill Gargan have the leading roles. The story concerns the rivalry between two Virginia horse-racing families and how the younger members find a means of ending the feud.

The racetrack scenes will have you thinking you are on the rail at Pimlico.

to see his wife fall in love with handsome Ray Milland, his city doctor friend. Patricia Morison, with very beautiful blue eyes and figure, is the girl.

"Untamed" is "Mantrap" produced in technicolor with some fine color shots of mountains, snow, lakes and trees. However, the best thing in the film, besides Akim, is the supporting cast—the settlement women who sit and gossip and make an ugly affair out of a very real love between doctor and trapper's wife, ensnaring the couple in a situation they have sought to avoid. Dame Mae Whitty leads the gossipers. It's a good lesson in what harms andills can come from unloosed tongues.

GHOSTS ADD TO FUN IN NEW 'BLONDIE' FILM

"Blondie" is up to old tricks at the Rialto this week—with a few troubles with ghosts and servants thrown in.

"Blondie Has a Servant Trouble" finds the screen Bumstead family living in a haunted house to prove it's not haunted. Dagwood is ready to let it be haunted, but Blondie finds that by living in it they can have servants, as well as ghosts, something she has always wanted. Panels, hidden passages, magic tricks and disappearing walls add to the comedy before Blondie solves the problems and discovers her servants are crooks and that they are the real 'ghosts'.

Arthur Lake, Larry Simms and Penny Singleton are the screen Dagwood, Baby Dumpling and Blondie.

SOAP BOX DERBY ON CAPITOL SCREEN

Most interesting on the current Capitol theater program is the movie short of the Georgia State Patrol in action, saving lives on Georgia highways and the newsreel shots of the Atlanta Soap Box Derby which The Constitution sponsored last Saturday.

The feature is a story of "Gambling on the High Seas," in which Jane Wyman and Wayne Morris emote. It is good average entertainment that will give a few exciting moments.

Wartime 'Mother' In 'Last Farewell'

Madame Henri Raguin, French mother to the Emory University unit during the first World War, remembered her boys at the Georgia institution yesterday in what she termed her "last farewell." This communication from this wealthy woman, who endeared herself to these boys, came from Spain when the German troops swept through her homeland recently.

"Mother" to the Emory group, Madame Raguin nursed many soldiers during their fighting in France. Early in the 1920s she visited Dr. Fred C. Hodgson and Dr. Frank Boland in Atlanta. Keeping in constant touch with them through correspondence, her last message came to Dr. Hodgson.

'Mad' Britons Ready To Whip Hitler's Best

Englishmen Prepared to Blow Up Own Homes, Shell Their Towns.

By DREW MIDDLETON.

WITH THE BRITISH FIELD ARMY'S NORTHERN COMMAND, Aug. 2.—(P)—British soldiers maneuvered across three counties throughout this long, hot day, simulating as closely as possible the situation they expect when Germany strikes.

Guns battered targets far out at sea, and on land the chatter of Bren guns and the clatter of tanks furnished something of a preview of possible invasion to the silent Yorkshire civilians.

Reviewing the work tonight, Lieutenant General Sir Ronald Adam, chief of the northern command, declared that the army, radically altered in organization and tactics, "is ready to fight and whip the best Germany can send against it."

Praising the army morale, he remarked, "You know the Parisian shopkeepers have an old adage, 'Beware of a mad Englishman.' Well, there are a couple million mad Englishmen in khaki. The last six weeks have saved us." It was evident that much lethargy and conservatism had been shaken out of this army by its experiences at Dunkerque and along the Somme.

Instead of light-hearted young men, there are men soberly planning to blow up their homes, shell the towns they were born in, and destroy the fields and beaches on which they played as boys.

Watching the biggest guns smash a target far out at sea, I asked an artillery officer if they could be used on a village nestling on shore, if Germans should gain a foothold there.

"We'd blow it to bits," he replied. I remarked it seemed a pity, it was such a pretty village.

"I know it," he said. "I have lived there all my life."

House Group May Ditch Bill For Housing

Measure Would Provide $5,000,000 for Loans Authorized.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(P)—Informed congressional sources predicted today the house rules committee would ditch a slum clearance-housing bill which is before congress with administration backing. The measure would authorize the annual appropriation of $5,000,000 to unfreeze $150,000,000, which the United States Housing Authority is authorized to lend but for which it lacks rent subsidy funds.

Federal rent subsidies are paid annually to local housing authorities, to which loans have been granted, in the interest of reducing the low-cost housing rentals.

Struck by Train, Man Hurt Fatally

A man identified as H. G. Henderson, of 252 Milton avenue, died at Grady hospital yesterday afternoon as a result of injuries sustained when he was hit by a Southern Railway engine near Roseland, police reported. Both legs were amputated.

Engineer T. E. Fowler reported the engine was moving about eight miles an hour when the man was struck. Just out of the shop, where it had been reconditioned, the engine was being broken in slowly.

The train crew was not aware that Henderson had been hurt until they had reached the end of their trial run and headed back to the shops. Then Fowler saw him lying by the tracks.

Henderson died shortly after being admitted to Grady hospital. He was identified by a brother, Paul Henderson. Other survivors included a sister, Mrs. S. J. Bufington, of Milner, Ga. Funeral arrangements will be announced by J. Austin Dillon.

Two View Father At War Painting

Atlanta's Cyclorama drew two illustrious personages to the city yesterday to view the battle in which their father served as a commander during the Battle of Atlanta 75 years ago.

Francis Barrett Degress, of New York City, and Mrs. L. Degress Bird, of Mexico City, spent the morning viewing the famous painting, which shows their father, Captain Degress, as commander of the Degress Battery, which changed hands several times during the fierce conflict between the northern and southern armies.

Roosevelt Will Leave For Hyde Park Today

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(P)—President Roosevelt has made tentative plans to leave tomorrow for an indefinite stay at his home at Hyde Park, N. Y. He may be gone a week or 10 days.

It was considered likely that he might inspect some defense areas in the state, but he told his press conference today that he had no definite plans to do so.

Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the House Military Committee, told reporters previously that Mr. Roosevelt had invited him on a short tour that would probably embrace the New York harbor defenses and plane factories around Buffalo.

CWA, the first federal relief agency, came into the field, she was picked for that job.

It kept growing and growing, but it never quite caught up with Miss Shepperson. It was never too big for her.

She "retired" last December, because of "ill health." But nobody could see her knitting in a rocking chair. She's on the job again. And, all who know her are confident, much happier.

Essential Training

It would be difficult, if not impossible, to over-emphasize the importance of the training begun here, of selected WPA workers in those mechanical crafts essential to the production of the machinery and equipment for modern war.

Recent reports from England state that, while the war production program there is accelerating fast and now proceeding at a pace which would have seemed miraculous only a few months ago, nevertheless British war industries are handicapped by lack of men trained in the operation of intricate machinery and in the manufacture of high-speed tools. It is stated that 98 per cent, which is practically all, the trained mechanics of Britain are employed, and because there are too few, many of them work long hours, some of them seven days a week.

Modern warfare is fought not by the army in the field alone. It is fought by entire nations. The nation provides the strong shaft, the army and navy but the spearhead for the drive against the enemy.

Probably the most important of the non-belligerent workers in a country at war are the highly-trained mechanics in that nation's war industries.

The Fulton training program began, this week, with 36 men divided into three classes. Shortly this will be increased to several hundred. It is a vitally important activity in the national defense program and it is to be hoped that, without unnecessary delay, it be expanded to the training of men by the thousands.

The Ranting Rane

A first impression of the Rane of Sarawak leads to the logical conclusion that the best place for the Rane is in Sarawak. Her efforts to muddy the child refugee situation have been in startlingly bad taste, to put it mildly, and if she intends to make a "good will" visit in this country her best method will be by silence.

Sarawak is an independent state in Borneo, nominally under the protection of the British crown. It was there the Rane obtained the background under which she now utters wild condemnation of the refugee problem.

Early this week the Rane charged that "nice youngsters and rotten youngsters" were mixed in the groups of child refugees to be sent to Canada and to the United States. It might be pointed out that in any large group of children the good and the mischievous will be mixed, either in this country, in England, or in Germany—or Borneo. Rightly, the refugee children should be chosen as a fair cross-section, good and bad, rich and poor.

The Rane's second charge: that the women of England "are faking names of relatives in Canada just so they can get rid of their children," more or less reveals her trend of mind. She apparently feels that the deep maternal urge to obtain safety for a child is criminal. How criminal it would be, if these mothers of England wished to keep their children in homes subject every hour of the day and night to merciless bombardment.

The Rane's own daughters have a habit of marrying wrestlers and band leaders and are not unknown to the sensational press and the lurid magazines. So, perhaps, she would do better if she left the lives of other people's children in their own hands. She may be Rane in Sarawak, but apparently she is only going to be a damp rag in this country.

Those who wear "spun glass suspenders" shouldn't lift heavy stones.

Officer Praises Businessmen In Army Camp

Six Medals Awarded to C. M. T. C. Trainees as Period Nears End.

Putting an amazing snap into final drills, citizen-soldiers brought the special C. M. T. C. at Fort McPherson to a virtual close yesterday on a visitors' day program staged under weather conditions typical of the 30-day period.

Lowering skies and a drizzle which later broke into a drenching rain failed to dismay the trainees as they stepped briskly and pivoted smartly in a final review before Lieutenant Colonel Clifford R. Jones, camp commander.

Learned Lot.

"I believe they have learned a lot," he said. "Most of them seem well satisfied with the training they have received. The manner in which these business and professional men, who gave of their time and money, entered into this program should be an inspiration to their fellow citizens."

The camp officially will be over Monday, with the trainees en route to their homes Tuesday, Saturday and Monday will be devoted to final inspections, recreation and depressing.

Medals to the six outstanding trainees of the camp were awarded during the formal ceremonies when they were called from the ranks and given decorations.

Conrad Kinyoun, director of the municipal laboratory at Savannah, was given a medal as the camp's outstanding trainee, and Hoyt S. Brown, Rome, executive of a clothing factory, designated the outstanding trainee among the other Georgians present.

Other Awards.

Faber Bollinger, president of the Atlanta Kiwanis Club, made the presentation of the award to Trainee Kinyoun and Lieutenant Colonel C. M. Jones gave the medal to Trainee Brown on behalf of the Georgia Department, Reserve Officers' Association.

Other Kiwanis medals went to Ralph W. Hartman, Stuart, Fla., postmaster; John H. Sutherland, New Orleans, of the world life service; United States Department of Interior, Russell S. Crowe, Marietta lawyer, and Cleveland H. Vaux, Baton Rouge, Louisiana State University assistant forestry professor.

Bond Set for Two In Counterfeiting

William E. Bartlett was placed under $5,000 bond, and Ralph Wilson under $2,000 bond yesterday, pending an investigation by a federal grand jury into their alleged counterfeiting activities.

Meanwhile, secret service agents continued their search for other members of a counterfeiting ring believed to have been smashed Thursday with the arrest of Bartlett and Wilson near Rex, Clayton county.

Bartlett, according to Assistant United States Attorney H. H. Tyng, has been convicted three times for counterfeiting, and is now out on conditional release from Alcatraz, where he was serving a six-year term.

In a hearing yesterday before United States Commissioner David J. Meyerhardt, Bartlett admitted his guilt, but Wilson denied any connection with the outfit.

Stolen Pistol, Missing Three Years, Is Found

A pistol stolen three years ago turned up this week in an Atlanta pawn shop. County Policemen Jesse Anderson and I. D. Eason reported yesterday.

The gun was snatched from a woman by a Negro burglar she had captured robbing her home, Anderson recalled. The Negro was later arrested, but the pistol did not appear again until it was pawned Wednesday by another Negro. Anderson said the pistol was traced by its serial number.

Man, Arrested Mayor To Ask Here, Wanted Confirmation In Birmingham For Tidmore

Former Film Publicity Director Charged With Robbery.

Kenneth F. Hagan, 50-year-old former Hollywood publicity director, who was picked up here Wednesday night by city detectives on a burglary charge, is wanted in Birmingham on a charge of bank robbery, the Atlanta field office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported yesterday.

Federal agents said he has been identified as the man who walked into a vice president's office of the First National Bank of Birmingham at closing time last Saturday, ostensibly to cash a draft, and drawing a pistol forced the bank official to hand over $3,000.

Hagan was arrested by Detectives Leo Nahlik and M. M. Copenberger as they sought an escaped convict.

A check of FBI records showed Hagan had served a term in San Quentin prison, California, for robbing the Bank of America at Los Angeles of $3,000.

He told Detectives Nahlik and Copenberger that he was once press agent for Ona Munson, the "Belle Watling" of "Gone With the Wind."

Company Denies Planning Building

A report circulated in Atlanta yesterday through a local insurance bulletin announcing construction plans for a $3,000,000 building on Peachtree road, near Huntington road, for Montgomery Ward & Company was denied by officials of the mail-order company at Chicago.

Montgomery Ward officials said the company still owns the Peachtree road property, but is not planning any use of it now, either for market, mail-order house, or warehouse.

Colorado Pastor Will Speak Here

The Rev. Roger D. Bosworth, Ph. D., pastor of the First Universalist Church of Denver, Colo., will speak tomorrow morning at the Unitarian-Universalist church, 669 West Peachtree, at 11 o'clock. Dr. Bosworth also will speak at a men's luncheon to be held Tuesday noon at Davison's tea room.

These two events are the prelude to the Georgia Universalist State Convention, which begins Thursday evening, August 8, and continues through Sunday, August 11.

Other speakers will be the Rev. Henry T. Atwood, of Bangor, Me.; Professor F. A. Merrill, president of the Georgia Sunday School Association; the Rev. L. C. Prater, of Camp Hill, Ala.; the Rev. Thomas Chapman, of Atlanta, and the Rev. J. N. Rasmussen, superintendent of Universalist churches in Georgia.

Accused Swindler Gets 12 Months

E. A. Pentecost, a fast-talking salesman, was sentenced to serve 12 months on public works and fined $50 yesterday by Judge Jesse M. Wood in Fulton criminal court.

Facing the judge for the second time in less than a month, Pentecost was charged with cheating and swindling and larceny by trick. I. F. Malone, of 610 Peters building, complained that Pentecost sold him a suit of clothing and collected $3 but said he never got the suit.

E. G. Williams, of Hardin road, said he answered an advertisement for a book salesman and that Pentecost gave him a job. Three days later he was promoted to assistant manager provided he would put up $10 for a surety bond premium. Hardin said. He did, but he got no books to sell, he said, so he complained to police.

Farmers Warned Of Rough Ginning

Unless cotton ginning methods are improved, penalties will be far greater in the future than in the past, General Manager D. W. Brooks, of the Georgia Cotton Producers' Association, asserted yesterday.

Brooks said that cotton mills, becoming more technical each year, are becoming more inclined to place a higher penalty on rough-ginned cotton.

"Every effort should be made by every farmer and ginner and all agricultural agencies to improve immediately the quality of ginning," he declared.

Seaboard Plans Plane Service By Next Year

Subsidiary Company Will Operate Line; $5,000,000 To Be Spent.

Plans of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad to establish new air routes through Atlanta, to be operated by a subsidiary company called Seaboard Airways, Inc., were disclosed here yesterday by Alvin P. Adams, president of the air corporation.

Adams said that the new company has applied for a permit from the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and if permission is granted by the first of the year as expected, the air line will be in operation within another six months.

To spend $5,000,000. Bondholders of the Seaboard Air Line Railway have authorized the expenditure of $5,000,000 for the establishment of the air route, Adams said. The line in operation, he indicated, would connect Boston, New York and Washington with Columbia, S. C., Atlanta, Birmingham and New Orleans, and would connect with Pan-American Air Lines at the southern point.

Another line would run from the eastern cities to Savannah, Jacksonville and Miami, with alternate trips to Tampa and the west coast.

Four cities, two in the east and two in the south, are under consideration as head offices for the new company, Adams said, though he did not indicate whether Atlanta was one of these.

Non-Stop Service.

New service out of Atlanta will be both non-stop to Washington and by Raleigh and Durham to Boston.

The company plans to buy four-engine planes, costing $275,000, seating 32, with a speed of 280 miles an hour, and twin-engine ships costing $175,000.

Adams revealed his plans at a meeting presided over by Jesse Draper, head of the aviation committee of the Chamber of Commerce. Robert T. Maddox, a director of the S. A. L., W. L. Stanley, of Atlanta, and C. E. Bell, Norfolk, of the S. A. L., also spoke.

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Sunday's lesson, the first Psalm, with a kindred passage in Matthew 7:24-27, brings us in the series on messages from the poets to David, "a man after God's own heart." The 150 poems called the Book of Psalms, were written by different men. David wrote 73, and perhaps more, while Asaph, the sons of Korah, Solomon and Moses wrote several of these poems. We cannot be certain of the authorship of a number of the Psalms, save that some man wrote them under divine inspiration. The Psalms span a period of perhaps a thousand years.

Praise is the prevalent note in these poems—prayers of adoration, gratitude and thanksgiving. There are also great prayers of confession and intercession, and some of the Psalms are definitely prophetic. Space restrains further detailed description of the Psalms.

Let us come now for a moment to this first Psalm, often called the Psalm of the two ways, with its contrast between the righteous and wicked in character, standards, conduct and destiny. McLaren declares that the first Psalm may be regarded as "the heart's echo to the speech of God, the manifold music of its wind-swept strings as God's breath sweeps across them." It is real poetry, without a doubt.

The Psalm opens with a portrait of a good man—a man blessed because he walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, standeth not in the way of sinners, sitteth not in the seat of the scornful—a man blessed because he thoughteth day and night in the law of the Lord. Therefore, such a man is like a tree whose roots go deep into the lift of God, whose fruit is as regular as the seasons, whose spirit is radiant, whose service is eternal in its value and victory.

The second portrait is that of a bad man—a man miserable and lonely and fruitless and convicted and condemned—a man whose life is like the chaff which the wind driveth away!

"For," and I pause to say that this little word "for," which introduces the sixth verse of the first Psalm, is the key to it all. "For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the ungodly shall perish." The two ways are open to each man, and each man chooseth the way his soul shall go, and God knows each man, regardless of which way he chooses—knows everything about him.

Now turn to the passage in Matthew and hear Jesus saying of the two ways:

"Therefore, whosoever heareth these sayings of Mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man. . . . And whosoever heareth these sayings of Mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man. . . ."

Free Fishing Plan Advocated by Nix

GREENSBORO, Ga., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Gubernatorial Candidate Abit Nix, of Athens, today advocated free fishing for persons angling within their own county.

"The present law requiring a license for all fishermen is very unfair to a large percentage of our country people," Nix said in a prepared address, "because there are too many other places they must put their dollars."

"Free county fishing would give the poor people the same privileges and pleasure in this regard as the citizens better able to pay."

He continued his demand for popular election of State Highway Board members.

15 Are Indicted By Fulton Jury

John C. Krafz, 28-year-old New York accountant, was indicted yesterday by the Fulton grand jury on four counts charging forgery and passing forged checks.

At the same time the jury named 14 Negroes in true bills charging lottery violations. The solicitor general fixed bond for each at $1,000.

Krafz, attaches of the solicitor's office said, forged the name of A. D. Bailey, of the De Soto hotel, Jacksonville, Fla., to one check for $575 and another for $150. The larger check was passed on an Atlanta automobile company and the smaller one on a hotel here.

He was arrested when he attempted to pass another check, it was said. Krafz is being held in Fulton Tower with bond set at $2,500.

Camp Officers Exonerated in Staffins' Death

Penal Committee Says 17-Year-Old Youth Died of Pneumonia.

Following a thorough investigation, the committee on penitentiaries of the Georgia House of Representatives yesterday concluded that Paul Staffins, 17-year-old prisoner at the Dallas prison camp, died of pneumonia, and that officials and guards were exonerated of any responsibility in connection with his death.

The report declared that Staffins had been sent to the Dallas camp from the Cobb county camp as a "trouble-maker." He was convicted of burglary in Fulton county and sentenced to five to seven years. His father charged that he had been beaten with a blackjack and that his ankles bore marks of shackles.

"According to the evidence received through direct contact with Arden A. W. Clay, Dr. J. I. Matthews, camp physician; Foreman Harold Hyatt and other prison officials; Oscar Owen, ambulance driver, and hospital attendants, we maintain that Paul Staffins died of pneumonia, contracted by natural causes, and that the matter has been given undue as well as false publicity in the press, which publicity stated that the said Staffins had been beaten and undergone severe punishment that resulted in his death. We believe that such allegations are false and not only lower the standards of the Georgia penal system, but cast a very undesirable reflection upon the same," the report disclosed.

The report was signed by E. L. Almond, chairman of the penitentiary committee, and Elbert Forrester, secretary.

Grover Byars, chairman of the board of penal corrections, said the list of affidavits obtained in the case would be open for inspection to anyone who wished to see them.

McKellar and Cooper Win by Big Majorities

Senator Gets 91 Per Cent of Votes, Governor 83 Per Cent.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Record-breaking majorities were accorded United States Senator K. D. McKellar and Governor Prentice Cooper in their bids for renomination in the Democratic primary yesterday although the official vote was not expected to exceed 270,000.

Unofficial returns from 2,012 of 2,279 precincts today gave the six-term senator 91 per cent of the votes cast in the senatorial race, while Cooper won 83 per cent of the gubernatorial ballots.

Both had the backing of the Shelby county political organization headed by National Committeeman Edward Hull Crump, of Memphis, and both defeated two opponents.

Continues Drive For Better Road To Amicolola Falls.

For a number of years it has been my delight to keep up an argument—mostly one-sided—in favor of a road to Amicolola Falls, which is up in north Georgia not far from Dawsonville.

It is listed as one of Georgia's great natural wonders. It isn't many miles off the paved highways which lead from Atlanta to Dawsonville and from Ellijay to Dawsonville. But it is in No Man's Land. The last few miles may strip the differential out of a car. And even if you drive to the nearest accessible point you've got to climb and climb over logs or under them to get a sight of the falls—which are beautiful falls and almost worth the trouble—once.

Some time since I printed a complaint from an intrepid Atlanta voyager who had been there and back. He wondered if his car would ever run again, except sideways.

But comes a letter from R. C. Meaders, superintendent of the water department of Dahlonega. He says the road builders are working from both ends of the Ellijay-Dahlonega road and hope to complete it this year. He insists Lumpkin county has done its share and it's not Lumpkin's fault. Except that two of the county commissioners were defeated in the last election and the Lord knows what their successors will do.

Mr. Meaders says Lumpkin county's part of the job is pretty well graded, is plenty wide—and for a mountain road exceptionally straight. And good in dry weather.

That's fine. Now, if they'll put plenty of rock into that road, to prevent slipping and skidding in the wet, nobody could ask more. One doesn't expect a four-lane highway of concrete to lead to some beauty spot.

Hot Biscuits.

Tracy Mathewson, the cameraman who owns a farm away back yonder in Pickens county and hopes some day to find time to live on it, tells me of a mountaineer neighbor who went down to Jasper one day, was invited to supper with a friend and became enamored of hot biscuits. And who could blame him?

He had never seen biscuit before. Indeed, white flour was as strange to his home as caviar or crepes suzette. But he had sold his cabbage, so he invested in a sack of flour and a pound of lard and took them home—with a guaranteed recipe provided by his hostess.

Matty said his informant had occasion to visit the biscuit-fancier's cabin a few days later. The three youngsters in the front yard were poking sticks at white-brown objects about six inches in diameter.

They were the wife's stab at biscuits. But the kids thought they were turtles—and were trying to make them stick their heads out.

I've seen biscuits like that. But not at our house, I make haste to explain. I do not desire to go biscuitless the rest of my life.

Ten Bucks Per Pound.

Sports writer in Orlando, Fla., after years of burning the midnight electricity and studying market reports with a slide rule, announces that the cost of a black bass, hooked by a fisherman, is one buck. And that a pound of quail brought to camp by a hunter averages $10.

Which demonstrates conclusively that there's no profit in fishing and hunting. I'm feeling unusually commercially minded today, with the mortgage payment coming due.

Same thing with gentleman-farming. Old story about a Wall Street tycoon who invited guests to the farm where he raised pedigreed cows and ran a dairy to take care of the product.

"Friends," he said, at dinner, "you may each have a quart of vintage champagne or a glass of milk. They both cost me about the same."

I went fishing not so long ago. Shared the cost of a boat, got sunburn, had a swell time and caught around 40 bluefish. Tackle was too heavy. No fun in it. So we used the bluefish for bait and caught sharks. Which we hit in the head with a club and threw overboard for their brethren to eat.

Then we went back to the hotel and paid a dollar each for dinner—the main course being bluefish. But just think of the fun you have.

Today's champion silly story: Teacher asks Johnny which he'd rather have. Half a gooseberry pie or a fourth of a gooseberry pie. Johnny says, "the fourth." Excuse me for not using the Q. and A. style, but I get paid only half for quotes. Teacher asks why Johnny is so dumb and Johnny says: "Because I don't like gooseberry pie."

"What," inquires one of these syndicated Q. and A. columns, "is peculiar about the Chinese language?"

My well-considered opinion is: "Darn near everything."

Fulton Farmers Make Own Downy Beds

FINISHING TOUCH

to a feather-soft ship to waft one far into the Land of Nod is being put deftly by (reading around the mattress from left to right) Mrs. J. T. Barron, Mrs. J. L. Anderson, Miss Elsie Mauldin, Miss Flora Mae Hunnicutt, Mrs. Gladys Wilson, Mrs. W. R. Barnette and Mrs. Sadie Watkins.

WORK WITH WILL Grabbing handful of snowy cotton fluff, S. E. Buise, R. J. Holbrooks, and Arnold K. Huff (left to right) stuff it into a tick, an early step in making a mattress.

TUFTING That's the task occupying the busy fingers of Hubert Wilson, as he does his bit toward turning out a fluffy mattress. One thousand and sixty-five Fulton farmers with annual incomes of less than $400 have already made application to Uncle Sam for free material, and the mattress-making is going full blast.

Says Nazis Were Unready To Seize Greatest Opportunity.

Although it took Germany only 37 days to win the Battle of France, the Battle of Britain now has passed the 50-day mark with little to indicate its probable duration or outcome.

Whatever the reason, Germany's delay in pressing the fight against England illustrates graphically the unreadiness of the Nazis to seize their greatest opportunity. Had Germany been able to strike at once against England in the wake of French capitulation, the Battle of Britain might be over or at its crisis now.

The obvious explanation of the delay is that Nazi leadership from the top down was wholly unprepared for the sudden and utter collapse of French resistance, or else completely misjudged the effect that disaster would have on British will to fight on. Either way you take it, a definite miscalculation can be charged against Nazi leadership which has otherwise appeared to out-guess and out-manuever British and French rivals.

It could prove the fatal defect in Nazi war-making efficiency, as the fumbling of imperial Germany's 1914 drive on Paris was the fatal error for Kaiser Wilhelm. The 1914 "miracle" of the first Battle of the Marne, which saved France and paved the way for ultimate German defeat, could find its parallel in the Battle of Britain if the delay enables England to withstand the German all-out attack.

Material Change.

Within the 50 days since the Battle of France ended some factors that made England's peril terrible and imminent have changed materially. Elimination of the French fleet by grim British action is one obvious asset. That action removed Britain's fear that her sea power might be nearly matched by her German-Italian foes.

Britain has been able, too, to set her defense house in much greater order than it was when France fell. For one thing, there has been opportunity to reorganize her mine defenses and convoy system and thus eliminate the grave danger that vital military information might leak out through French sources which necessarily had intimate knowledge of their ally's dispositions.

It is that which explains the reported detention in England of French munitions and other missions stationed there before France's surrender. Members of these missions would know much about the location and key points of British war industries. There could be no certainty in British minds that if they were permitted to return to France such information might not reach the enemy.

Officers Defy Threats.

There have been reports that the Germans carried on an intensive campaign among the families and friends of French naval personnel manning escaped French battlecraft after the surrender. Fears of what might happen to their dear ones in conquered France exerted powerful leverage on French navy officers and men to accept the internment terms of the armistice. That any substantial number of them defied such threats is more surprising than that most of them capitulated.

The same tactics applied to members or aides of the French missions to England might have forced them to divulge the whereabouts of concealed British air-planes or munition plants. Britain could not take that risk.

There is another item in the war news that has especial interest for this writer. It is the British claim of having inflicted great damage on the German port city of Hamburg through repeated air attack. Many other German centers of military or munitions activity had been similarly shattered, the London spokesman said, but he stressed particularly the bomb damage wrought within the last three months at Hamburg.

Damage Not Known.

That might be a British propaganda answer to German claims of having wrecked the port of Dover. Neither side has ever given any real intimation of the extent of the damage it suffered from enemy air raids. Both stress non-combatant casualties due to enemy action.

As to Hamburg, however, the writer recently received a letter purporting to recount the personal observations of an anti-Nazi refugee from that city, now escaped to neutral territory. The observer said that Hamburg residents were making nightly trips "to the cellar" because of British air raids. Hamburg oil refineries and tanks had been hit repeatedly, it was added, and were in flames continuously for three days.

A huge Hamburg shipyard had been repeatedly blasted, this reputed eyewitness added, and also tenements and apartment houses located in the vicinity of oil tanks, shipyards and other targets.

There is no means of checking this or any other report of bomb damage on either side; but the account of what had happened at Hamburg some time ago came to mind in connection with the British claim that the port had been "pulverized again and again" and was "now practically in ruins."

Impeachment Is Urged For Sheriff in Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 2.—(AP)—A Jefferson county grand jury investigating gambling and slotmachine operation today recommended impeachment of Sheriff Harry E. Smith on charges of "corruption" and "neglect of duty." The grand jury's report asserted Smith had permitted operation of gambling and gaming devices in the county and had accepted funds from persons connected with operation of the devices.

THE MORTAL STORM

Fritz Demands That Freya Be Chief Bridesmaid When Family Want Another

By PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

SYNOPSIS. At the vast Maber estate, where Freya Roth is recuperating from an illness following the death of her Communist lover, Hans Breitenberg, Freya suddenly discovers that she is about to bear Hans' child. Previously she has been about grimly silent, even contemplating suicide—and all the while unaware that Hans was killed by Fritz Maber, her aristocratic admirer, at the order of her own stepbrother, Olaf von Rohn, a Nazi. She thinks that Olaf and Fritz tried to help save Hans, and anticipates the wedding soon to take place between Olaf and Sophie Maber, childhood sweethearts. The will to live once more restored in her, Freya studies her medical books avidly, is supremely happy because of the child to come. She looks forward, too, to the visit of her father, Dr. Johann Roth, celebrated Jewish scientist, and does not realize that all the delays of his visit have been occasioned by the fact that the Maber family and friends of the Roths, are afraid to invite even a renowned Jew to their home. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XLVII.

She had waked to find Sophie in tears, sitting at the foot of her bed, declaring that she didn't know what to do. Freya saw at a glance that Sophie not only knew what to do, but had made up her mind to do it; her expression of indecision and her tears were merely a tribute to her natural tact. What Sophie had come for was to get Freya to agree to her decision and to give up being chief bridesmaid, because Pauline Steyer and Stein objected that Freya's presence made it a "Jewish wedding."

"What does Olaf say?" sprang automatically from Freya's lips. Her whole being hung on Sophie's answer. She was to know, at last, how strong the tie still was that bound them to each other.

Olaf hadn't exactly repudiated her; he had said: "Freya is my sister. I can therefore say nothing—it is for Sophie to decide." And now there was Sophie, gazing at her through her careful tears, waiting for Freya to do the thing, really sensible and graceful thing, voluntarily retire from a situation that could otherwise be made most painful all round. But Freya would not retire. A storm of queer and angry feelings had swept over her. She hadn't known that she could still feel so much about anything. She wanted to be Sophie's chief bridesmaid! She actually wanted to wear the corn-colored satin dress, and the blue cornflower wreath. She wanted—just for this last time—to be a young girl in the full pride of her girlhood—and to let it end on this one gay triumphant note.

"No!" Freya had cried out roughly. "I won't give way to Pauline! I'm what I've always been! You chose me—knowing what I was. If the Nazis make such a difference to you, you should have asked me to give it up long ago. Have they suggested it now? To Olaf? To the Graf? No! I thought not! It's only Pauline's spite because with her yellow skin she doesn't look nice in corn color. And she knows I do! Sophie—have a little courage! Stand by me—and get another girl to take Pauline's place—we can get the dress made over!"

Then the whole Schloss had blown up. Everyone had opinions, from the Graf to the stableboy. The bridesmaids took sides—the von Maber for Freya, the von Rohns, emboldened by Olaf's silence, against her. The Graf was definitely for Amelia's daughter—the Grafin blinked and refused to give any opinion—but Fraulein Rosa, her factotum, and Sophie's old governess, would not have dared to say so firmly that the name "Roth" in the newspapers was hardly desirable just now—if she hadn't guessed that the Grafin had no particular objection to her saying it. Sophie herself, while continuing to weep copiously, had rather suspiciously listened with unusual respect of Fraulein Rosa.

Then Fritz suddenly went up like a rocket. Never had Freya—never had any of his family—seen Fritz master a situation as he had proceeded to master this one.

He held a meeting of the bridesmaids and terrified the von Rohn cousins into retracting their opinion. He drove Pauline out of the Schloss by an indelicate reference to a peasant great-grandmother. He reduced Fraulein Rosa to complete and prostrate subservience. He had all the servants on his side and when he triumphantly returned to the Schloss after a short absence with her village priest and the doctor, the Grafin, the Grafin relied for a permanent alibi whenever an illness would be convenient) prepared to uphold Freya, the Grafin herself blandly asserted that she would telephone to Pauline's mother, and had no doubt that if Pauline would not retract, she could be replaced.

Pauline had retracted and Fritz had invited Freya to accompany him on a secret mission to Kufstein, while the Schloss settled down.

Freya was going to be chief bridesmaid, but the foolish childish joy that had made her fight for it, had died out with her victory. What she was grateful to Fritz for, was not that he had won for her what she wanted, but that he had cared enough for her, to fight against his entire world.

She looked at the profile so close to her own, as if she were looking at it for the first time. She had thought she knew everything about Fritz. His warm-hearted rather ruthless egoism was as familiar to her as the way in which—when the odds were against him—his matter-of-course unimaginative courage invariably broke down. But today it hadn't. He had made up his mind—with Olaf standing coldly neutral beside him—to get Freya what she wanted. He had told his mother and Sophie that as far as he was concerned, if Freya was not chief bridesmaid, neither he, nor any of his friends, would come to the wedding.

Fritz had a great many friends, and he was the future owner of Schloss Maber. His rather loose, self-indulgent mouth had settled into lines of such surprising firmness that both his mother and Sophie saw that he actually meant what he said.

He did not try to talk to Freya—the pace he was driving at ensured silence—but their silence had never before been so deeply companionable.

They were driving toward freedom. The farther they went, the emptier grew the road. The new law—closing the Austrian frontier to Germany—had been passed to punish Austria; but the greater country had turned the key of its prison upon itself in order to injure its smaller neighbor.

Fritz's permit to cross included his companion. Freya was going to pass unchallenged the frontier where Hans had lost his life.

She began: "Is it funny?" Fritz—"and then stopped short, blushing to her forehead, for what was even stranger than her pulling herself up, was her having for the moment before she did it, expected Fritz to share what was in her mind."

He hadn't of course even for a second understood what she was feeling. "What's funny?" he demanded, his mind still on his own surprising victory, "the way they caved in or the way they carried on? I thought it all disgusting! It's one thing having to obey an order; it's another to do that what-ever one feels to the contrary—but I've no patience with these ultra-Nazis who set up a barrier when there isn't any! Everyone knows your father isn't a Jew at all—according to what's meant by one. He hasn't any religion. It's only your grandparents—and they're both dead—that have to be reckoned with at all! We talked the whole Jew question out with our commander at the fortress. It turned out he had a Jewish grandmother himself! He said the Nazis don't intend to take up these remote cases unless they have to—they're more than willing to let sleeping dogs lie."

"I tell you what would make the whole thing easier, Freya—if you could only agree to look at it as I do—Jew-baiting is just a stunt to show foreigners that we aren't going to put up with it! These silly intellectuals have got to be hit all round—and it's easier when they're Jews—to round on them than when they're only intellectuals! All you've got to do is to agree roughly to the Nazi aims—a strong Germany—going its own way and getting back what it knows belong to it! Once the Nazis realize that you're going to be a faithful citizen to the new regime, they'll ride light over your back relationships."

To Fritz's relieved astonishment Freya did not indignantly repudiate this suggestion, she even appeared to be thinking it over. A curious sense of flatness stole over her mind, what could she put up against the overwhelming power of the Nazis? She was not a Communist in fact whatever she might feel she was in theory. She had not joined the party. If Hans had lived she would have joined it; and for a time after his death, she had intended to join it; but she had never been able to forget her father's warning—by becoming a Communist, she would lose her chance of being allowed to practice as a doctor—or she must leave her country. To leave Germany meant cutting herself off from her parents and her friends. She was 20 years old; and she was already aware that grief—even such a grief as she felt for Hans—could not outlast her youth.

In a few years' time, she might wish to marry. She would still be young, and life was strong in her. Since she had given herself to him they had ever been as a girl, than they had ever been as a girl. Her pride no longer rose with repugnance against the attraction she aroused in men. She would have to give up her child—to the upbringing of a peasant—but free of this one tie, she could marry again.

Even what she felt for Fritz was stronger than her old half-friendly, half-antagonistic feeling. It was not only because he had served her that she felt for him such a deep, confident kindness. His touch, though it overpowered her, no longer enraged her. On the contrary, if he put his arms round her, she felt that it would be a comfort—not an extravagant comfort, she was still without desire—but the sort of comfort Olaf might have given her and had not given her.

Ahead of them was a small striped stick on either side of the road; across the torrent stretched a guarded bridge. On each side of it stood armed sentries. Freya stared at them with blank eyes, trying to hide the havoc of her memory. She could not follow Fritz's answer. He showed her Grenzscheine and after a joke or two they drove on. A few moments later they drew up before the Austrian frontier; the same speech—the same featured men guarded it—only the soldiers wore a different uniform; then they were over the frontier—they were free.

The torrent by the roadside was the same torrent, as bright as if it ran over gold, nor were the mountains different, the summer heat, the summer flowers were the same.

The peasants who passed them gave the same "Gruss Gott" for greeting, but their eyes, Freya thought, met theirs with a more direct and friendly gaze; and on people's faces there was an inner, unguarded expression. They looked as if no one had ever watched them.

Freya did not say what she thought to Fritz. She did not want to disagree with him. Her heart was filled with kindness, but to admit that in order to behave decently one had to be ordered about by a Nazi seemed to Freya to be childish nonsense.

When they drove through Kufstein Freya asked Fritz to let her climb up to the castle by herself and join her when he had finished his business.

She stood for a long time on the terrace above the little town, looking across it, to the Kaiser Gebirge.

They had supper together at an inn by the side of the torrent. The Stube was full of soft-voiced boys and girls, fresh from the mountains, with bunches of edelweiss and alpine roses strapped on their rucksacks—fine healthy creatures, sunburnt and full of laughter. After supper they joined their tables together, calling for fresh draughts of beer, and sang. They sang outspoken merry love songs with absurd and hearty choruses; and when they had sung enough they started to dance. It was hard to tear themselves away from such an easy company.

"That's the first really jolly evening I can remember," Fritz said, as they left the Stube, in a hail of friendly farewells, "since we had that day's skiing at the Glau-deamus Hütte in January. A hundred years ago—do you remember?"

"Yes, I remember it," Freya agreed, without reminding Fritz, of what had made it memorable to her.

They drove out of the little town in silence. The sickle moon was in possession of the cloudless sky but not large enough to light it. The air was full of summer scents, and the dark meadows gleamed with fireflies.

"Freya," Fritz said in a voice she had never heard him use before, "don't go back into that damned dangerous unfriendly atmosphere again! There's a way to make it safe and friendly. Why don't you take it? Marry me. Not because I love you; but because I can make it safe for you. I couldn't before; I didn't love you enough to let you alone! It's different now—I want you to be safe—more than I want to have you! I wouldn't bother you now with my love! I'd be as patient as you like!"

"I know that," Freya said. "I know that you really love me—that's just it! It doesn't make it simpler! Not for me! For you—I can see that it does! I can't love you yet but I've gone further towards it than ever I thought I could. I could marry you now! No—go on driving! It's not so easy as it looks—what I am going to say—and you won't like it! Neither of us can like it!"

She was silent for so long that turned the car off the road and stopped his engine.

"Turn on the light," Freya demanded, and as he obeyed her she faced him, her dauntless clear eyes fixing themselves on his, as if she dared him not to look past her words into her soul. "I don't suppose you can marry me, I wish it or not—when you know that Hans was my lover before he was killed—and that, in six months' time, I shall bear his child."

It was only the innocence of her eyes that kept Fritz' hands from her throat.

F. D. R. At Odds With Woodring On Draft Bill

President Openly Advocates Conscription; Ex-Aide Attacks It.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(P)—President Roosevelt directly advocated peace-time military conscription today and his former secretary of war, Harry W. Woodring, opposed it.

"I am distinctly in favor of a selective service training bill and I consider it essential to adequate national defense," the chief executive said at a press conference, emphasizing his words by permitting direct quotation.

"Now any fair-minded member of congress," Woodring said in a letter to Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, who issued it to the press, "could say that we have given the voluntary system of enlistment for the United States Army a fair trial and that it has broken down, and therefore we need the compulsory service, is beyond my understanding."

Set For Vote.
The senate military committee was busy polishing the conscription bill for a final vote scheduled for early next week. After hearing the testimony of War Department officials, it rejected an amendment to limit the number of men who might be called up to 900,000, and another, under which voluntary one-year enlistments would be tried for a 90-day period to see if the army's personnel needs could be satisfied without compulsory service.

As the measure stood, it would require all men 21 to 30 years old, inclusive—some 12,000,000 in all—to register for the draft, with exemptions for those with dependents to support. It also would permit supplemental voluntary one-year enlistments for all between 18 and 35.

Capital Is Interested.
The coincidence of the statements by the President and by Woodring attracted much attention in Washington.

With the increasing acuteness of the conscription controversy, demands had been made for a statement from the President on the legislation. He had previously declared himself for compulsory service in principle, but declined to be drawn into a discussion of details of particular legislation. He followed the same course today.

Elaborating his views, Mr. Roosevelt said that in 1917, the nation built up an army of 4,000,000 men, but it was 13 1-2 months later that they went into action. During that period, no shot was fired at this country over here, he added, but that was a bit of sheer luck which would never happen again.

Must Be Ready.
The lesson to be learned from the present war, Mr. Roosevelt said, was that a nation must have trained men and equipment ready when it starts. By training in advance, a nation reduced casualties, he continued.

Woodring disputed the oft-stated contention that the voluntary system of raising men for the army had failed. Instead, he said, it has not been given a chance. For one thing, he said, higher pay in the navy and the CCC camps lure men in those directions, especially since a CCC enlistment is for one year and an army enlistment is for three.

Seven months ago, he said, he urged that base army pay be increased from $21 to $30 monthly and was told that such a course was "inconsistent with the financial program of the administration."

He urged first of all that the conscription bill be amended to make it ineffective until the army's chief of staff certifies in writing "that the voluntary system has completely broken down."

HOUSE CONSIDERS PLAN TO EXPAND INDUSTRY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(P)—A plan to encourage industry to expand plants for defense purposes was tentatively approved today by the house tax subcommittee. It would enable holders of national defense contracts and subcontracts to deduct the cost of the expansions from taxable earnings over a five-year period, at the rate of 20 per cent a year.

Members of the subcommittee, meanwhile, had before them at least two plans for an excess profits tax.

One, proposed by treasury tax experts, would give corporations a flat $5,000 exemption in figuring the tax, plus a non-taxable credit determined by applying average earnings over a base period—1936 to 1939, inclusive—to currently invested capital.

A counter-plan would levy a 40 per cent tax on taxable excess profits and would offer concerns organized prior to January 1, 1940, two alternatives as to figuring their deductions:

1. A specific exemption of $5,000 plus the average net income for

The Army IN GEORGIA

General staff officers attached to Third Army and Fourth Corps Area headquarters here were regrettably ordering their boots shined and heavy army uniforms cleaned and pressed yesterday, preparatory to shedding their summer linens and leaving for the super-heated Sabine area of Louisiana and Texas, where Third Army and National Guard maneuvers will begin next week.

Members of the general staff have been ordered to report to headquarters at Camp Beauregard, Alexandria, La., Tuesday. Lieutenant General Stanley D. Embick, Third Army and corps area commander, will not arrive until August 12.

Frizzell, G-1; Lieutenant Colonel Stacy S. Knopf, G-2; Lieutenant Colonel George R. Barker, G-3; Major Bernard B. McMahon, assistant G-3; Lieutenant Colonel LeRoy Lutes, G-4; Major Philip T. Fry and Major William H. W. Reinberg, assistant G-4.

Officers stationed here who will see duty as special staff members include Major Lawrence E. Schick, adjutant general; Colonel Herbert M. Cole, assistant adjutant general; Colonel Creswell Garlington, engineer; Major Edward N. Chisholm, assistant quartermaster; Lieutenant Colonel Thomas W. Hasteley, air officer; Major Sam Ellis, assistant air officer; Colonel Thomas C. Spencer, signal officer; Colonel James L. Frink, quartermaster and transport officer; Lieutenant Colonel John A. Hueper, finance officer, and Lieutenant Colonel John T. Axton, chaplain.

Major Joe Moss will serve as aide to the commanding general.

ATTORNEY TO LEAVE FOR WAR GAMES

J. J. Flynt Jr., assistant United States attorney and cavalry reserve officer, will leave Atlanta Wednesday for National Guard and Third Army maneuvers in the Sabine river area. Flynt, who holds a first lieutenant's commission, served a year with the Sixth Cavalry after his graduation from the University of Georgia.

Marion Edward Minor Jr., of Milledgeville, has been appointed a second lieutenant in the infantry reserve, Fourth Corps Area headquarters announced yesterday.

ROOSEVELT DENIES PROGRAM IS BOGGING.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(UP)—President Roosevelt, through Robert W. Horton, information director of the National Defense Commission, today took sharp issue with published statements that his multi-billion dollar preparedness program is bogging down.

Substance of the statements, published in New York and Chicago, was that contracts for war planes, tanks and other essential mechanized units were not being awarded in the volume claimed and that many necessary defense materials are not even being produced.

Mr. Roosevelt referred the newspapermen to Horton after stating that William S. Knudsen, production chief of the defense council, had informed him that work is proceeding on contracts totaling $1,800,000,000.

Regents Back Compulsory Army Training

Georgia Board Votes To Assure Roosevelt of Co-operation.

Compulsory military training received the approval of the State Board of Regents yesterday as that body authorized Chancellor S. V. Sanford to send President Roosevelt a telegram expressing their views on national defense.

The telegram to be sent to President Roosevelt follows: "As human liberty on this continent is now in danger, there is no time to lose in making possible an adequate program of national defense."

Atlanta Deb's Song Receives National Honor

Jane Osburn's 'Memory of You' Will Be Broadcast Today.

(Picture on Page 1.)
A song written by Jane Osburn, a member of this year's Debutante Club, will be featured on a national radio hook-up this afternoon.

Somewhat on the torchy side, the song is titled "Memory of You," and was written when the debutante was a student at Miss Porter's school, Farmington, Conn. It has no verse, and the chorus goes like this:

"No moonlit cottage, no walks in Lovers' Lane,
No shining rainbows to follow the rain,
Only a heart filled with deep, longing pain,
And a memory of you."

"I dreamt of heaven with you in my embrace;
That's over, darling, I never can replace
Each happy moment. And I'm face to face
With a memory of you."

"I thought our love was endless, but, darling, now I realize
'Twas mere infatuation. I can see it in your eyes."

"And now we're parted, we'll never meet again;
I'm broken-hearted, I know this is the end.
But deep inside, dear, I'll always be true
To the memory of you."

"Of course, I'm excited," the composer said yesterday when notified of the news. "Who wouldn't be?"

Until yesterday, Miss Osburn hadn't taken her brain-child very seriously. She turned it over to Tommy Dorsey when he came through Atlanta on his vacation last April, and forgot about it until The Constitution notified her yesterday afternoon that it has been chosen a prize-winner in an amateur song-writers' contest and given a nation-wide send-off this afternoon.

The broadcast is scheduled to begin at 4 o'clock over WSB.

Keep Hubby Dressed In Latest Style

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Just because your husband's ancestors came over on the Mayflower is no reason why he should pioneer in his manner of dress. You don't rush down and buy the first styles until you know they will compliment your appearance, so why should he?

Of course, he doesn't have time to wander around and look in the stores and try on suits, hats, coats, shoes, etc. as you do, for after all he should spend some of the day in his office making money for you to spend for his clothes. (That you will spend more money on yourself is understood.)

The thing for you to do is to go down and check over the latest styles in men's apparel. Have you thought and considered just what he well-dressed man should wear in 1940 fall? Is it a good idea to look into the subject, because, nanlike, your husband will wait until the first cool day, before he will realize that he needs some old clothes.

He will rush down in a hurry, buy the first suit he tries on and never think about his hat, topcoat and accessories. Then when you tell him that you wanted him to have a dark brown suit, or a grey one, he will take it personally, develop the well-known chip on his shoulder, and go around in a mood which isn't the most pleasant for Peace in the Home.

It is always easy for a woman to turn a man's head—sometimes in another woman's direction, and he same is true for man. What woman wouldn't turn her head, but have a skip in the heart beat when she sees a man who looks like he had just stepped out of the well-known fashion page?

You know how grand and wonderful the men look in the advertisements, so why not have one in your own home? It is easy if you know how. And what woman doesn't?

Doctor Advises What To Do When Bitten by Animal

By Dr. William Brady.

Once and for all I will give my opinion and advice in reference to this question. I assure you I am gravely conscious of the responsibility that rests upon me.

First, then, no specific cause (virus, germ or organism) has been discovered in animals purporting to have rabies.

Therefore the nature and cause of what purports to be rabies in animals has not been scientifically proved or demonstrated. Nevertheless, a large majority of good doctors believe rabies is a common disease in animals, especially dogs, and that it is transmitted by the bite or scratch of the animal that has it, the virus, germ or organism being present in the animal's saliva, and so infecting or inoculating the wound, scratch or raw or cracked surface the saliva happens to contaminate.

A large majority of physicians believe, too, that rabies is readily transmitted to a human being by the bite of an animal that has the disease or even by simple contamination of any scratch or other slight crack or abrasion of the skin by the saliva of the infected animal—for instance, by licking of the hand or face by a dog that happens to be in the early stage of the disease.

Most physicians still seem to believe immediate cauterization of wound or scratch inflicted by a rabid or possibly rabid animal, by a physician of course, and then a course of Pasteur treatment—beginning at once (one injection of Pasteur virus daily for not less than 14 days), the best treatment for anyone bitten or wounded by animal suspected of having rabies.

Personally, I doubt that rabies occurs in man, and I fear possible ill effects of so-called Pasteur treatment more than I do the possible development of rabies in a man. Therefore I myself would not have Pasteur treatment in any circumstances.

If I were bitten or scratched by an animal purporting to be rabid, I should want the wound immediately treated by a surgeon, not necessarily cauterized, but disinfected as the surgeon might deem necessary, aseptically dressed or better left exposed to air and sunlight. Then I should want an immediate injection of anti-tetanus serum (lockjaw antitoxin)—and a week later a second injection of the same antitoxin. That would complete the treatment and my worry.

Now my advice to anyone wounded by an animal purporting to have rabies is this:

1. Have the wound treated immediately, no matter how trivial it seems, by a physician, by whatever method the physician deems necessary.
2. If the animal is captured or under control, have the animal confined under observation of a veterinary physician for two weeks.
3. If the veterinary observes no signs of rabies in the animal in the course of two weeks it is certain there is no danger of that kind and no further care of precaution is necessary.
4. Never kill the suspected animal if capture and observation by the veterinary is possible.
5. If the animal is killed, pack the head in ice and send it at once to the pathological laboratory designated by your local health officer for examination.
6. If your physician advises

Pasteur treatment by all means accept his advice.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Diathermy. Appreciate your advice as to whether a fibroid growth on the tonsil would be stimulated by diathermy treatments.—C. D.

Answer.—Probably electro-coagulation (diathermy extirpation) in the hands of a physician skilled in the technique would take care of the growth along with the tonsil.

Small Scraps Are Inevitable In Every Couple's Marriage

By Caroline Chatfield.

Beyond the peradventure of a doubt every girl that gets married could save herself a lot of heartache and despair if she would face the facts of life as she's seen them, heard them and read them. More often she turns her back on facts and sees the rosy picture love paints. A young miss writes that she's had her fill of disagreements in her parents' home and getting married she's resolved that she and the new husband will have no disagreements.

As if two people could live together without disagreements! Oh no, young lady, you're going to have disagreements, all right, about your family, his family, your friends, his friends, about finances, fun and a few other matters. That is unless one of you is cowed and afraid to speak your piece. None of which need make any difference if you learn how to make up, how to forgive and forget. Furthermore you can daily reduce the number of disagreements and reap a rich reward from the law of diminishing returns. If you will do a bit of fact facing and refuse to let the sun go down on your wrath.

The disagreements are inevitable because the wedding certificate isn't, as the dream of wedded bliss, a guarantee of wedded bliss, world without end, but rather an agreement of two people who don't really know each other to be 50-50 partners in everything. Both of them have daily surprises as to what they've let themselves in for. They didn't realize their wife, assuming the obligations of the other, family financial and social obligations. They soon discover that they don't think alike, react alike, see or hear alike. No disagreements? Why, it's ridiculous!

Temperature of the house, personal habits, table manners, color of the coffee, texture of the meat, length of the nails, shade of lipstick, can be fighting words with any young couple until they learn what each will stand for and won't.

If they don't scrap over these inconsequential beholds the days come when there's no escape. There will come a day when the tired husband returns to his lair resembling a soreheaded lion much more than a loving bridegroom. There will come a day when something the wife thinks absolutely necessary to her happiness appears to the husband as a shameless extravagance or vice versa. No disagreements? Why, it's ridiculous!

These fallings out are as much a part of marriage as lovers' quarrels were of young love and need amount to no more if they carry on as they did when they were lovers; each of them refusing to spend a sleepless night of worry when by saying "I'm sorry," they could kiss and make up before the sun went down.

Wearer of This Type Evening Gown Will Be Cool, Comfortable, Chic

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 2.—How to be cool, comfortable and chic is demonstrated by Sonja Henie in her latest informal, two-piece evening gown. The white bodice is detachable, has tiny sleeves, zips down the front, is open at the neck, and culminates in two shirred pockets. The full skirt is in printed silk of scarlet, yellow, blue and gray on a white background. Shoes and evening bag are of white of gaberdine.

Ann Sheridan looked like a geisha girl dancing the other night at Ciro's, with her hair up in a pompadour, and double gardenias pinned over her ears. Ann's gown was a slim white crepe dinner-frock with the wide dirndl belt embroidered in black velvet scrolling.

Ellen Drew at the races wearing a polo coat made of soft, heavy camel's hair material. The coat had a full, swagger back, wide shoulders, and a flattering hood just above two buttons accenting a shallow yoke.

Rosalind Russell fooled Jimmy Stewart—and me—with those three lemons she wore as lapel adornment for a scene in "No Time for Comedy." We both thought they were real! Closer inspection revealed the life-size fruit to be made of a fabric processed to appear as shiny as the real thing. The suit to go with the lemons was of navy broadcloth—the jacket long, the skirt short and of slim silhouette.

Bette Davis says she discovered the perfect homemade hand lotion receipt while looking through a Godey's Ladies' Book (between "takes" of "The Letter"). You have to mix and heat together one ounce of glycerine, two drams of spermaceti, and two ounces of olive oil.

Virginia Bruce wears jet to ornament a white linen sports frock. The two breast pockets are embroidered in black jet beads, and there is also a narrow black jet beaded belt.

Rosemary Lane has succumbed to baby blue chiffon culottes worn with a matching full-sleeved blouse and Roman-striped sash in blue, rose, white and black. The culottes are so full they are practically a skirt, and Rosemary plans to wear them as a dancing get-up.

How to change old dresses into new with a minimum of expenditure is demonstrated by Ann Rutherford.

"Like everyone else," says Ann, "I bought a black dress last season. But last year the trend was toward a gently flared skirt, inset waistband, shirred bodice, and a broad shoulder line. To make it look new I bought two and one-half yards of printed challis, ran it up into a widely gathered apron effect, and put it over the black crepe. Twisted strands of the challis marked the waistline and tied in a perky bow at the back. And there I had a new dress!"

Dorothy Lamour's latest hat—navy blue velvet with dots of chenille—is draped across the off-face brim, which is wide and turns up to frame Dorothy's face. The hat is worn with a navy crepe one-piece dress with surplice bodice accented in applied leaves of matching suede. A short cape of the same fabric and bordered in platinum fox is worn with the outfit. Her shoes—navy kid pumps.

Slack news . . . Virginia Dale owns an all-in-one pair in navy blue poplin. A square sailorish collar of white poplin buttons on at the neckline, and there is a touch of white relief at the waistline, where a narrow belt holds the tailored slacks in place.

Claudette Colbert has just bought an attractive white garden dress. The full, short circular skirt extends upward into a moulded waistline. This is topped by a bright red bodice of the same material. The dress is backless with a separate bolero of cotton fabric. To go with it is a huge cartwheel hat of stitched white pique minus a crown.

The nail brush is an invaluable aid in manicuring but it also should be used in the home. Give your nails a workout with a brush while washing the hands.

Women Will Eat Right Food To Grow Long Fingernails

By Ida Jean Kain.

It seems the ladies will go to any lengths to grow long fingernails—they are even willing to eat the right kind of food and are writing to ask for the list.

It's a list worth knowing, for the foods which help to keep the nails in the pink of condition also figure in the health of the hair. Nails and hair are modified skin and protein is the element necessary to their structure. The complete protein foods—so called because they furnish all the essential amino acids—are: Meat, fish and fowl, milk, eggs, cheese and nuts.

The specific protein element utilized in the hair and nails is the amino acid methionine, which is changed into cystine. The cystine content of the hair and nails determines their quality. Scientific experiments show that the lower this content, the poorer their condition.

Neither methionine nor cystine means much to the average person. But all we need to know is that these important elements are contained in the complete protein foods, and that our daily diet should supply a certain number of these. From every standpoint, protein plays a fundamental role. It is constantly needed for the building and repair of tissues, and whether you are on a restricted diet to reduce, are trying to gain, or to keep your weight at normal, at least one-tenth of your normal daily calorie allowance must be furnished by the complete proteins. Even on a reducing diet your protein intake should not be decreased. That shows you why you can't follow the haphazard plan of merely taking less of everything in order to lose weight. Your daily protein requirement will be met if you have daily a liberal serving of lean meat, one or two eggs, one or two glasses of milk, skim milk or buttermilk—or a serving of cheese in place of one glass of milk. A small quantity but good quality protein is furnished by the other foods which complete the balanced menu. By adding to the protein foods fresh fruits and vegetables, whole grains and butter, you have a perfect diet.

wash out of washable material, but dye may be affected so that the color is changed. Holding the stain over the fumes of a bottle containing ammonia may restore the color. If not, there is no way to bring the color back except by re-dyeing. Old perspiration stains may become alkaline through decomposition; diluted lemon juice may restore the color. Follow the lemon juice with clear water. Old stains on white material may be bleached with peroxide of hydrogen, to which a few drops of ammonia have been added, applied with a medicine dropper over a bowl of steaming water, and then rinsing. A fabric that is not washable should be dry cleaned, though this may not wholly return the color or remove the stain.

Brush-up for beauty—is the advice given by Ruth Hussey, M-G-M actress. When applying powder, first use a puff, then a brush to brush off the excess remaining powder. This gives a smooth-finished look to the skin. And don't ignore a brush for lipstick, which puts it on smooth.

MY DAY: New School To Fit Women For Business

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—I have a most amusing letter from a gentleman who is evidently promoting a secretarial school run by a young lady in whom he may have a personal or purely business interest. It isn't such a bad idea, so I shall tell you about it.

The school will offer a course said to fit women for business, so that when their husbands are called to military service the ladies can run their businesses. This sounds rather ludicrous, but there is one thing about it which is not foolish. If the ladies can be taught business hours and application, they may possibly be able to grasp more about their husband's businesses than they have in the past.

No course could teach each one of them the particular problems they will have to face, unless they are just taking over a minor job. Still the general training may be of great value and their husbands may find them more understanding and may be able to give them a little real education before the need arises for them actually to carry any grave responsibility. It may also make for more real companionship in every day existence.

One other interesting letter has come to me from a thoughtful young doctor who read the financial problem of another doctor, which I described the other day. I do not know enough about it to know if there is a germ of a solution in the paragraph I quote below, but I think if many people come together and think about the problem, we may arrive at some helpful conclusion. Here is solution No. 1 for consideration:

"The only remedy that I could suggest for this highly controversial problem (which I understand is attracting various social, economic groups and legislative bodies), is to adopt the federalized medical plan, so that everyone who seeks medical aid will be able to obtain it through their respective doctors by means of a sliding scale insurance tax plan. This would obviate the free clinics and the necessity of building extra hospitals, when we have at the present time and at all times 200,000 idle beds in our hospitals throughout the country."

It is, of course, much warmer here, but the White House itself is always spacious and pleasant. I have enjoyed seeing various gentlemen who have been kind enough to come and talk to me about some of the plans which are being considered as possible opportunities for youth training which will train them for times of peace as well as war.

Check Faults In Your Speech

The speech of her smart fellow-vacationers sounds so different from hers! So, uneasy and self-conscious, she talks in an affected way—which amuses more than it impresses.

Just simple English errors cause that "difference" she feels so keenly. She says "he DONT" and "ACROST"; well-bred, educated people say "he DOESN'T," "ACROSS."

No, there's nothing mysterious about cultured speech, no quality that even a person of little schooling can't acquire. But how important your English is—in social, business contacts!

If you make such errors as "I REAL happy to be here . . . I COME by boat . . . I DON'T HARDLY think so" you're rated as far down in the social scale.

But you're put at the top if you say correctly "I'm VERY happy I CAME by boat . . . I HARDLY think so."

Unfortunately, we are often deaf to our own mistakes—are the last to recognize our faulty English. To spare yourself that embarrassment, inspect your speech from time to time and root out errors which may have crept in.

There's no danger then of making the wrong impression on people you'd like to know better. You avoid a crude: "I'll try AND go . . . WHERE'S the tennis courts? Who is that light-COM- PLECTED girl?"

You appear socially acceptable by saying, "I'll try TO go WHERE ARE the tennis courts? Who is that light-COM- PLEXIONED girl?"

Good English isn't a gift of the gods. Anyone can learn to speak charmingly. Our 40-page booklet, COMMON ERRORS IN ENGLISH, lists everyday faults and their correct forms, gives right meanings of words often misused. A guide to cultured speech habits.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, COMMON ERRORS IN ENGLISH, to Home Institute, The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and name of booklet.

Gay Assembly Marks Advent Of REA Power

Marion Allen, Congressman Camp Speak at Celebration.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
GAY, Ga., Aug. 2.—Gay became virtually the capital of Meriwether county as five middle western Georgia counties celebrated the advent of rural electricity to help with the chores.

More than 1,100 persons gathered in this small community to eat and have a good time, to hear a bit of speaking, to vie for prizes—and to forget politics.

United States Senator Richard B. Russell, scheduled as one of the featured speakers, was detained in Washington by the press of defense legislation, but was represented by Marion Allen, Georgia collector of internal revenue.

Congressman A. Sidney Camp, of Newnan, also addressed the celebration crowd.

Both featured speakers, and Harvey Kennedy, of Barnesville, who introduced them and presided as master of ceremonies, paid glowing tribute to the administration which has made farm power possible and to the spirit and vision of the rural property owners who now have made it their servant.

Farm families from far and near brought picnic baskets and lunches, which were spread at noon, and the celebration came to a close at 4 o'clock.

The new REA lines extend through Meriwether, Coweta, Pike, Upson and Lamar counties.

Woman Guest Found Dead in Pool on Estate

Blond Model's Nude Body Discovered at Manufacturer's Home

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Aug. 2.—(P)—The nude body of Ellen Legge Nash, beautiful New York model, was dragged tonight from a swimming pool on the estate of Neil Reed Andrews, wealthy cosmetic manufacturer.

Westchester county medical examiner, Amos O. Squire, said that the 27-year-old blonde was "accidentally drowned" during a pre-dinner swim.

Police attempted vainly for 90 minutes to revive the girl with artificial respiration. They, too, called the death accidental and closed the case.

Police said Miss Nash, who lived in New York City, came to the estate, one of the finest in Long Island sound, yesterday as Andrews' house guest.

Miss Andrews and another guest, Miss Vick Grey, of the Bryant hotel, New York, had spent the day cruising in Long Island sound off Westchester, police said, and returned to the estate and prepared for a swim in the pool before dinner.

While Miss Grey was searching for a bathing suit, Miss Nash apparently waded through the shallow end of the pool beyond her depth.

Andrews discovered the body a short time later and dived for it, according to police. They said Andrews, with the help of Miss Grey and a neighbor's houseboy, Henry Garcia, eventually succeeded in dragging the body to the edge of the pool.

Hugh Howell Is Qualified as Vidalia Pioneer

South Georgia City To Open Half-Century Festival August 8.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
VIDALIA, Ga., Aug. 2.—Hugh Howell, candidate for governor, will be eligible to attend the Pioneers' luncheon to be held at the community house here Thursday, August 8, the opening day of Vidalia's Half-Century Festival.

Howell was brought to Vidalia as a boy and received his early education at old Vidalia Collegiate Institute. He lived here until he went to attend college, and afterwards came back to Vidalia and taught school in this county before completing his law education.

The Pioneers' luncheon will be given in honor of Vidaliens and former Vidaliens who have had a part in the progress and growth of the city during the past 50 years.

Chess Abernathy, superintendent of city utilities, has revised his estimate of the expected number of visitors to Vidalia August 8, 9 and 10, the festival period and the opening days of the 1940 tobacco selling season.

Abernathy said about 25,000 persons are expected, and caterers of various kinds, who will supply hot dogs, ice cream, cold drinks and other foods and drinks, have doubled orders for supplies.

Abernathy and his assistants are erecting an outdoor stage on the school campus for the occasion, which will depict scenes of the early history of Vidalia.

A speakers' stand will be erected at Jackson and Second streets, from which all four candidates for governor will speak Saturday morning, August 10. The Savannah police band will furnish concert music for the speaking event, as well as for the historical parade.
